GENERAL French ready to approve Greek and Turkish admission to NATO: Unqualified French approval of NATO membership for Greece and Turkey will probably be forthcoming this week, 25X1 Although the cabinet had not officially acted on the question, Foreign Minister Schuman had secured enough support to insure approval. The French representative on the three-power 25X1 NATO Standing Group reports some progress toward the acceptance of French views on the distribution of command posts in the Mediterranean area. Comment: The French have abandoned their conditional approval of two weeks ago. France has been jealous of US and UK influence in the Eastern Mediterranean, but the Foreign Office probably now believes that the Standing Group will extend its control eastward and thus protect French interests in the area. British and US officials advise against intervention in Saar issue;

Both the US Embassy in Paris and the British Foreign Office advise against the injection of the Saar issue into discussions with the French in the near future, on the grounds that it might create an atmosphere unfavorable to agreement on more important problems.

an inquiry on the Saar question might be regarded by the French as further US pressure for French concessions to Germany. Moreover, it would probably lead the French to endeavor to "nail down US support" for their proposed settlement that might be more "generously" formulated if additional time were allowed before definitive positions were taken.

Both the US Embassy in Paris and the British Foreign Office comment that recent public statements by Schuman and Adenauer justify optimism concerning an early solution of the issue.

Comment: The US High Commissioner in Bonn previously commented that the 3 August reply of the Western Allies to Chancellor Adenauer's 29 May protest against the Saar Government's policies settled little, and that the issue remained controversial.
